Patrícia Almeida

Patrícia Almeida is a photographer and co-founder of GHOST Editions together with David-Alexandre Guéniot. She lives and works in Lisbon. She graduated in History at Nova University (F.C.S.H) in Lisbon and Photography at Goldsmiths College in London. She is interested in photography as a language and a territory of research and artistic creation. Her exhibitions frequently take the shape of installations working with various means of image production: photographic prints, artist books, posters, billboards, newspapers, videos or projected image. Her projects often start as books or artist publications, an important aspect of her work. In 2009 she was nominated for the Portuguese contemporary art prize Besphoto for her exhibition and book project 'Portobello'.

She is, since 2003, a member of POC/Piece of Cake, a network of European and North American artists working with photography and video.
